

WORKFORCE SPECIALIST SERVICE

What is the Workforce

Specialist Service? The Workforce Specialist Service offers confidential mental health assessment and treatment for all regulated health and social work/social care professionals. The service treats professionals suffering from a range of mental health issues such as stress, anxiety, depression or addiction, with a focus on the impact this may have on their work. WSS offers confidential expertise in delivering care at the interface between mental illness, the workplace and the regulator

Staff can access the service by visiting the National Wellbeing Hub, emailing prac.health@nhs.net, calling 0300 0303 300 or by scanning the QR code below.

Patient Feedback:

I would never have done this on my own. I was given some time off work to recover, and I can now honestly say things are getting better and I am undergoing some therapy provided by WSS. I am not sure where I would be without the WSS.

After my initial consultation I felt hopeful for the first time in a long time. I felt that there was help available and my clinician was invested in helping me. I feel that that this helped to visualise returning to work and continuing in medicine.

I am so grateful for help I have received so far. The care and understanding I have received has made such a difference and I feel able to breathe again, to feel more rationale to not have overwhelming fear and anxiety regarding every aspect of life.
